MCAT to accommodate more students

Hanover, NH

The Association of American Medical Colleges has been given 60 days to make their Medical Colleges Admissions Test (MCAT) tests more accommodating to students with learning disabilities. The lawsuit was filed by four college graduates who felt they should've received extra time on their tests due to their learning disabilities. Read more >

Plastic materials increase lifespan of children's wheelchairs

UK

Glass reinforced plastics and colored compounds are making it possible for wheelchairs to grow with disabled children and youth. A new wheelchair has been introduced in the UK called "Chunc". It is an injection molded, modular designed wheelchair that is easy to maneuver, contemporary, and lightweight. Read more >

Study Finds Discrimination Against Disabled Patients

USA

According to a study released on Monday, disabled women who are diagnosed with early stage breast cancer are less likely to be offered the best treatment option. They are also 20% less likely to be offered a lumpectomy, where only the cancer tissue and not the entire breast were removed. Read more >

Handrails

Handi-Ramp handrails are the perfect solution for your home, office or anywhere a railing will increase safety. They are constructed of steel or high strength aluminum to meet all ADA accessibility standards. Handrails are maintenance free and ideal for stairways, ramps, walkways, platforms, bridges and machine barriers. Several styles and custom railings are available. Call 1-800-876-RAMP (7267)

Galvanized Steel Ramps

Handi-Ramp galvanized steel ramp systems are designed to be the perfect solution for permanent or semi-permanent situations where a ramp is required. The heavy-duty steel construction makes these ramps a durable, cost-effective alternative to other ramp products. Plus, the open grate surface allows for leaves, snow or other debris to pass through so build-up and cleaning are non-issues. Ramps can be constructed to your specifications with widths up to 48". Call Handi-Ramp today to learn more (800) 876-7267.

Community

My family has lived in the western suburbs for over 23 years. I've enjoyed coaching and serving on athletic boards for local and national baseball teams. I am an active member and serve Notre Dame Church of Clarendon Hills. Small town, midwest roots irreversibly shaped my view of community and how neighbors are supposed to interact.
